

WARREN COUNTY'S WAR ON POVERTY

How Federal Dollars Are Spent on Nine Programs to Benefit County

(Editor's Note: This is the first in a six-part series of articles in which TMO staffer Steve Cullinane takes a closer view at antipoverty programs in Warren County.)

By STEVE CULLINANE

"So far as I can see, the only wounded in our local war on poverty have been the taxpayers—shot right through the pocket-books!"—Blain Mead

"One thing we must avoid is the attempt to measure the results with dollar bills... how can you measure services with a budgetary slide rule?"—Bob Walsh

Made in the heat of last year's political campaigning, these two statements represent two opposite ways of looking at local antipoverty programs.

Blain Mead, a practiced politician, saw only the things that all voters could understand: dollar-and-cent totals of how tax money was spent, rather than the intangible, hard-to-explain benefits that went along with the expenses.

Bob Walsh, an idealist, envisioned "services" that couldn't be measured with dollar bills. But he didn't specify how else they could be measured.

Since they made their statements, Mead has been re-elected as a county commissioner and Walsh has become the local antipoverty agency's assistant director.

In a series of articles this week we are going to try to combine the Mead approach and the Walsh approach. Dollars and cents are important, but so are the services they represent. Whether the services have been worth what they cost is the key question.

The answer to this question depends partly on one's own personal values, partly on the facts. Our own answer is, at this point, "maybe." We'll try to give enough facts so that each reader can reach his own conclusions.

We should point out at the start that we have not had free access to the local antipoverty agency's books, and so could not determine exactly how much has been paid to whom for what. This is despite a statement by Richard Brown, the agency's director, on Feb. 28, 1967, that "The books, with CPA audit, are now, and always have been, open for public inspection. Anyone may come to the office at any time to inspect the records and copy any or all of them for information to be used publicly (sic) or privately."

On Feb. 6, 1968, Brown said the books on the agency's operations in 1968 had been audited, and so were closed. He added that he would open them only for federal investigators. Before going further, an outline of local antipoverty programs past, present and future is in order. All the programs have been sponsored by a group called Warren-Forest Counties Economic Opportunity Council, Inc., (hereafter referred to as EOC) formed in the summer of 1965.

Brown's predecessor as director was Robert Hockenberry, who did the ground work needed to establish a basis for antipoverty programs in the two county area.

He said about 15 per cent of Warren County's population was, in 1964, below the poverty level, with family incomes of under $3,000 per year.

Most of the money for the programs has come from the federal Office of Economic Opportunity (OEO), Warren County's share of the cash costs has been and is expected to be relatively small, amounting to about $1300 last year and probably not much more this year. For this reason, and because we have been unable to determine exactly what the county's money has been spent for, all the figures below are for federal cash costs.

These, then, are the programs—past, present, and proposed—"Program Development" (getting everything started) took place from late 1965 to early 1967. Total cost in federal cash: $32,284.

"Head Start" summer programs in 1966 and 1967. These were designed to give children from poverty-level families a "head start" when they entered first grade. The idea is that without the program they would fall behind in school. This may

Two Americans Aboard Lost Irish Plane

ROSSLARE, Ireland (AP) — Search craft picked up 12 bodies and bits of wreckage Monday from the Irish Sea where an Aer Lingus airliner crashed after falling out of the sky in a mysterious spin. The recovery operations gave officials their first possible leads to the cause of the tragedy.

At the same time it became known that two Americans were among the 61 persons aboard the airliner.

They were identified as Joseph W. Gangelhoff, 46, and his wife, the former Mary Hickey, both natives of Minneapolis. He was the public relations director for Continental Oil Co., Ltd., in London and the couple had lived there since 1966 after transferring from Houston, Tex., and New York. They had two sons and a daughter.

The plane crashed off the Irish coast Sunday on a flight to England after radioing a last, garbled message: "... at least 1,000 feet ... spinning rapidly ..."

Officials said the report of the spinning mystified them for it is unusual for a plane even in trouble to do that.

A procession of fishing trawlers and naval vessels put into Rosslare Monday night with the recovered bodies—some badly mutilated.

None was immediately identified.

Officials reported the passengers apparently had no time to put on life jackets since none of the recovered bodies had them. This indicated tragedy struck without warning.

All hope was abandoned for finding any of the 57 passengers and 4 crew members alive.

Aer Lingus is Ireland's airline. Its officials, clergymen, doctors, nurses and Red Cross representatives stood bareheaded and hushed on the dock as the bodies were carried to a warehouse converted into a mortuary. They will remain there until identified.

A spokesman said the search will continue through the night.

GONE IS THE SOOT

The familiar smokestack at Warren State Hospital will soon be gone, and North Warren residents welcome the change. In the final step of a changeover from coal to gas heating at the hospital, eliminating the soot problem which long brought complaints from people in the area, workmen from the International Chimney Co. of Buffalo, N.Y., are dismantling the chimney, brick by brick for safety's sake. Panama Faces Political Crisis

PANAMA (AP) — Striking behind clouds of tear gas, national guardsmen Monday seized 300 opponents of Marco A. Robles following his ouster as president by the National Assembly in impeachment proceedings.

The guard—the nation's only military force—was thus arrayed on the side of Robles.

The newly sworn government of Max Delvalle met secretly and was reported planning to try to set up quarters in the troop-surrounded assembly building.

As both Robles and Delvalle claimed power, the two-president republic seemed destined for deepening trouble and violence. The explosive situation threatened to involve the United States over the issue of diplomatic recognition of the Delvalle government.

In the impeachment trial Sunday, the assembly convicted Robles of influencing the selection of a candidate for the May presidential election. It also found him guilty of allowing the use of government facilities for political propaganda and hiring and firing government employees for political reasons. The assembly swore in Delvalle, a 6-foot-2 businessman with a reputation as a hard-driving administrator.

But Delvalle's new government did not take the customary step of changing the command of the 4,000-man National Guard.

Early Monday, gas-masked troops smashed into headquarters of the opposition National Union and a communique announced they had carried away a small arsenal cached in the building. The guardsmen arrested 300 persons in tear-gas supported raids that drove scores of families from their homes and hospitalized at least six persons.

Among those reported arrested was Hildegrando Nicosia, the National Union's secretary-general.

Spokesmen for the National Union claimed that guardsmen planted the arms in the headquarters building to justify their raid.

Sardinia Is Terrorized By Threats of Outlaws

ROME (AP) — Police were taking in dead seriousness Monday a threat that five north Sardinian landowners, chosen at random, will be murdered unless outlaws are paid 500 million lire—$800,000—by the end of this week.

The threat letter, received Saturday by the Sassari newspaper La Nuova Sardegna, could be only a grim joke. But in Sardinia, where outlawry has run wild for the last two years, the populace was terrorized.

Four of this year's six kidnap victims still are being held for ransom, or may have been slain. The new threat merely amounted to a demand for massive ransom without even the

County Awards Contract For Courtroom Drapes

The county commissioners on Monday opened bids for 12 pair of drapes for the large courtroom and awarded the contract to Wellman Brothers of Jamestown, N.Y. in the amount of $2,627.30.

Only other bidder was I. G. Tillard of Warren quoting a price of $2,998.98.

Bills in the amount of $2,267.56 were approved for payment. Chairman Dr. David K. Rice noted that the cost for payment for service to juveniles and adult prisoners in correctional institutions continues to take a substantial chunk of county funds. During February alone almost $2,000 went to institutional care for five juveniles.

The commissioners also agreed to purchase 19 new ballot boxes for the Pennsylvania Construction Company in

Johnson Pledges Better Society While Fighting War

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson said Monday he will fight off election year political attacks and continue building a better society for all Americans while standing firm in Vietnam.

"The America we are building would be a threatened nation if we let freedom die in Vietnam," Johnson told a cheering labor convention. And he asked help in combatting poverty, crime, disease and hunger at home.

"We will do what must be done. We will do it at home and do it wherever our brave men are called upon to stand," Johnson said.

Defending the record of his administration, Johnson said "We did make progress" in helping millions of Americans rise from poverty, providing federal aid for school children, medical care for the elderly and better jobs at higher pay for the nation's workers.

"These are the mighty foundations that we have put into place and we are not going to sit by and let them be torn down in a partisan, political election year," Johnson said.

Johnson did not refer to his Republican opponent, former Vice President Richard Nixon, or the two Democratic senators opposing him for renomination.

Eugene J. McCarthy of Minnesota and Robert F. Kennedy of New York.

"But I sometimes wonder why we Americans enjoy punishing ourselves so much with our own criticism," he said.

Several thousand delegates to a legislative conference of the AFL-CIO Building and Construction Trades Department enthusiastically applauded Johnson, some yelling "tell 'em, Texas," and "Give 'em hell."

McCarthy Seeks Votes In Wisconsin Primary

RIPON, Wis. (AP) — Hunting Republican votes, Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy carried his challenge of President Johnson to the cradle of the GOP Monday—and right into a headquarters of Richard M. Nixon.

The Minnesota Democrat, who also has been referred to as a leader of a "Children's Crusade" because of the youth of many of his supporters, talked to senior citizens, a Rotary Club and an association of lady bankers.

In his appearances in Fond du Lac and Ripon, McCarthy was obviously courting Republicans to cross over and vote Democratic in the Wisconsin primary April 2, to show their irritation with President Johnson—or with both Johnson and Nixon, the GOP front runner.

The Wisconsin primary has been stripped intentionally of party discipline and thus Republicans may vote Democratic and vice versa.

Leading a contingent of supporters and newsmen in a handshaking march along the streets of Fond du Lac, McCarthy suddenly turned into a "Nixon for President" headquarters and greeted a startled woman worker.

McCarthy turned away before she had a chance to say very much. When newsmen asked McCarthy what her reaction to seeing a Democratic candidate looming suddenly in front of her desk, McCarthy grinned and said, "She was glad to see me; I was the only one who had been in all day."

Congressman Renews Attack On Tax-Exempt Foundations

WASHINGTON (AP) — The chairman of a congressional investigating committee proposed Monday that tax-exempt foundations donate their receipts to the government during the Vietnam crisis.

Chairman Wright Patman, D-Tex., contended also that Winthrop Rockefeller, now governor of Arkansas, got a bargain in antique automobiles from a fund he organized.

Patman's report to a House Small Business subcommittee he heads said the tax exemption granted charitable foundations was not intended to help "rich men... indulge in their whims and fancies."

The report said 596 foundations studied by the subcommittee had receipts of $2.7 billion in 1965-66, including $990 million in capital gains, $39.8 million in profits on business operations as well as $506.6 million in contributions.

Patman suggested the foundations draw on capital to continue their domestic philanthropies. Assets of the 596 foundations, he said, increased from $10.2 billion to $15.1 billion from 1960 to the end of 1966.

In his argument for foundations to turn over their receipts to the government, Patman said: "Grants to governments by U.S. foundations are not without precedent. The Ford Foundation, for example, made direct grants (in U.S. dollars) to at least 25 foreign governments during the period Jan. 1, 1965, Sept. 30, 1967."

Payments abroad by 25 foundations, the report said, amounted to $176.6 million between Jan. 1, 1965 and Nov. 20, 1967, contributing to balance of payments problems. The total included grants, purchases of foreign securities and remittances to foreign branch offices.

"Since Americans, at all levels, are being asked to contribute more and more taxes to the support of the Vietnam war, the tax-exempt foundations can certainly do no less," Patman wrote.

Discussing gain in assets over the years of foundations, the report said ten Ford-controlled foundations increased from $2.7 billion at the close of 1960 to $3.1 billion at the close of 1966; 13 Rockefeller-controlled foundations from $1 billion to $1.4 billion; six Mellon-controlled foundations from $241.7 million to $502.9 million; five Carnegie foundations from $413.9 million to $500 million, and 10 Du Pont-controlled foundations from $179.3 million to $304.8 million.

Biggest Allied Offensive Still Raging Around Saigon

SAIGON (AP) — American and South Vietnamese infantrymen, pushing the biggest allied offensive of the war around Saigon, killed 243 Viet Cong troops in fighting still raging Tuesday morning, the U.S. Command announced.

In the air, America's newest warplane, the swing-wing F4IIIA, flew its first combat mission, a nighttime bombing strike against bivouac and storage areas in the southern end of North Vietnam.

Far to the south, in South Vietnam's Mekong Delta, U.S. air power has struck hard at the Viet Cong water supply line, smashing 245 sampans in three days, the U.S. Command said Monday. The enemy was believed preparing new attacks in that area.

The fierce fighting 28 miles northwest of Saigon was touched off before dawn Monday by Viet Cong troops who boldly attacked two South Vietnamese outposts and overran one.

American infantrymen from the 25th Division and government rangers backed by U.S. tanks moved quickly to reinforce the beleaguered outposts and ran into 200 to 300 enemy troops en route.

nameless troops. The aim of this sweep, the biggest allied thrust of the war, was to wrest the initiative from the Viet Cong after their lunar new year offensive and to keep the enemy away from striking distance of Saigon.

U.S. headquarters said that interim reports showed American and South Vietnamese casualties were light.

Under U.S. policy, specific casualty figures are not disclosed until all contacts have been broken off.

The fighting was the biggest single action of the Quyet Thang—Resolved To Win—offensive launched March 11 by 50,000 American and South Vietnamese troops.

The Viet Cong who were claimed killed in the latest action raised to 1,555 the number of enemy reported slain since the operation began. U.S. losses, not counting the latest fighting, have been put at 57 killed and 457 wounded. South Vietnamese losses were reported as 71 killed and 192 wounded.

Elsewhere, 16 miles west of Hue in the northern sector, three U.S. soldiers reported hearing enemy noises similar to those of tanks after their unit received heavy enemy automatic weapons fire and direct fire from what was described by headquarters as a "large caliber weapon of unknown type."

The unit, from the 1st Air Cavalry Division, called in artillery and helicopter gunships to pound the enemy positions.

Hysteria Claimed Cause Of Pupils' Sleeping

RAEFORD, N.C. (AP) — A North Carolina health official says some kind of hysteria apparently causes several Rafeord first grade pupils to mysteriously drop off to sleep while in class.

But Dr. Harry McLean, district health officer for Rafeord, says the reason for the hysteria is unknown and may never be known because the children now are receiving so much attention. "Very thorough medical examinations have been performed on the children three or four times and there's nothing physically wrong with them," McLean said in a telephone interview Monday night.

Psychiatric examinations were just beginning, he said, when news media learned of and first publicized nationally the sleeping children story late last week.

"We think this thing is a subconscious, learned process to achieve secondary gains—voluntary goldbricking," McLean said.

He indicated that the attention these children receive now could wreck the continuing investigation. All three major television networks have been denied permission to setup cameras in the children's classroom.

McLean said the incident is not without precedent.

A similar case, he said, was reported in 1962 in a small Louisiana town among girls aged 11-14.

The cause, McLean said, was hysteria because the girls had been "threatened" with pregnancy tests.

"Always before," McLean said, "the victims were adolescent girls. This time we've got girls six and seven years old, and two or three boys."

The children aren't in a natural sleep, McLean said. They will go to sleep while standing up or in almost any position. Under test conditions, McLean said, a pupil sitting can be leaned far from his desk and will remain upright.

Damages Total $250 In 2-Car Mishap

Damages totalling $250 resulted from a two car mishap on Hickory st. Monday, according to borough police, when a car operated by Howard Johnson, 606 Homestead pl., struck the door of a legally parked car owned by Edward C. Deremer, 829 W. Fifth ave., Deremer, who is being charged with a right-of-way violation, according to police, opened the left hand door of his vehicle into the path of the Johnson car traveling south on Hickory st.

Damage to the Johnson car was set at $150 while damage to the Deremer vehicle was estimated at $100, police said.

Poverty

or may not be so. Total federal cash cost: $60,840.

"Year-Round Head Start," begun locally last fall, has the same aims as the summer programs. But it puts the children through an eight-month course rather than an eight-week course. With 60 pupils at four centers, the average cost per pupil may be as much as twice the national average of $600 for such programs. Thus, Brown says, is because operating costs are higher in rural areas and most of the nation's other programs are in urban areas.

Total federal costs up until Dec. 31, 1967: $14,938.

"Conduct and Administration" (C&A) replaced "Program Development" in February, 1967, as the title of federal grants for administrative and miscellaneous activities.

Federal cash spent for C&A up until Dec. 31, 1967, totaled $38,496.

"Home Health," or "Home Help" (known by both names), is a program begun last summer that is still continuing, but only on a limited basis.

It has involved training of 11 "home health (or help) aides" to help the bedridden and their families, as well as to work in institutions. Total federal costs up to Dec. 31, 1967: $7,380.

"Project FIND," financed by the OEO but sponsored by the National Council on Aging, a non-profit group, began last summer, continued through the winter months, and was due to end this month. It has been extended, however, for eight more months. This is a peculiar mixture: ostensibly its aim is to conduct a survey of the needs of the elderly but in practice the emphasis is on finding needy old people and referring them to various governmental and private services for help.

If the goal were a survey only, it could probably be done better, more quickly and more cheaply by a private firm. Total federal cost up to Dec. 31, 1967: $22,562.

"Neighborhood Youth Corps" A local youth corps was begun last fall; previously some local youths had taken part in an Erie-based program. The idea is to employ youths from poor families who might without such employment, drop out of school. Total federal costs of the local program up until Dec. 31, 1967, were $9,056.

Clothing centers have been established, more or less as a sideline, by the EOC. These evidently cost very little and are immediately useful to poor families. They operate on a swap basis.

"New Careers" is a program proposed by Walsh to train state hospital attendants. It is apparently only a proposal at the moment, but if approved it might have a budget of $400,000.

The total expenditures of federal cash for all local anti-poverty programs from late 1965 up until Dec. 31, 1967, was about $175,000. Granted, but unspent as of Dec. 31, was a total of almost $200,000 in federal cash.

ILLUMINATED CLOCK

Have you noticed? The tower at the courthouse is radiating a new glow. Lights have been installed around the upper portion of the tower to illuminate the numerals of the clocks which face Warren in four directions. With the new lighting the clocks can now be easily seen from many blocks away. (Photo by Mahan)

Bureau of Mines Criticized For Neglecting Responsibility

WASHINGTON (AP)—Safety critic Ralph Nader asserted Monday that the U. S. Bureau of Mines is a "captive of the coal mine operators" and hasn't been meeting its responsibility to protect the safety and health of mine workers.

He criticized both mine operators and the United Mine Workers' union for the attitudes of mine safety.

Nader urged a Congressional inquiry into "the problem of coal miner pneumoconiosis (lung disease caused by coal dust), unsafe coal mine practices and the performance of the Bureau of Mines therein."

Council Finally Approves Proposed New City Hall

JAMESTOWN, N. Y. — It seems that votes of seven to five will forever remain as part of the proceedings of Jamestown's city council irrespective of what party is in office. City Council Monday night by a vote of seven to five beat down an attempt to delay action on Jamestown's proposed new city hall. The matter authorizing architects to proceed with working drawings was finally approved after a lengthy debate, by a vote of eight to four.

The seven to five vote reminded veteran city hall observers of the frequent seven to five votes which characterized the previous democratic city council when former Councilman Robert Godfrey lead the opposition, to former Mayor Fred H. Dunn. Last night's seven to five vote against the wishes of Mayor Charles B. Magnuson was led by councilman Warren Erickson. The split votes on the city hall issue marks the first serious split on the all Republican city council.

Following the highly spirited debate, Council President Fred Anderson declared "for the benefit of the Democrats the Republican honeymoon is over!" The matter of city council debates was a major issue in last fall's city election.

Under the terms of the resolution finally approved by the council the revised project plans call for a $4.1 million city hall. The Jamestown Architectural firm Howard & Domenci will prepare the working drawings.

Prior to the meeting which was more than one hour late in getting under way, Franklin W. Bigelow, president of the retail Merchants Association, Russell Bloomquist, a former president of RMA and Simon Goldman, president of radio station WJTN, all urged the council to proceed with the plans. Bigelow and Bloomquist, however, qualified their support of the project stating that adequate parking facilities in the area should also be provided.

Council President Anderson said, the public projects committee, of which he is chairman, deleted plans for an 82 car parking area in the city hall sub-basement in the interest of economy. He said, the $350,000 cost was more than Jamestown taxpayers could stand. Anderson said, his committee is considering three additional possibilities, which include a $125,000 lot for 40 cars on the first level of the new city hall. Another is for parking 37 cars on the top deck of the police and fire dept., and the third is a shuttle service from a parking area on Institute and First streets.

Plans approved by the council would include the 40 car lot for $125,000 with the provision for the roof top parking to be added later. It was also pointed out the new city hall, when constructed would eliminate 40 spaces in the present lot behind city hall and an additional 25 spaces along the four streets in the block involved.

The revised plans also call for the central fire station to be located at the rear of the high rise structure instead of at a separate location as proposed earlier. It also calls for moving the city court facilities to the second floor and the elimination of the proposed sixth floor.

Voting against the city hall proposal was a group led by veteran councilman Warren Erickson who was joined by councilman J. Emerson Weaver, John Colander and J. Raymond Peterson. Councilman Erickson and Weaver questioned the accuracy of the figures presented by the public projects committee. Weaver said the city cannot afford what he called "a glorious monument" and declared himself against the proposal.

Council President Fred J. Anderson sharply rebuffed the sixth ward Republican declaring the new building is not a glorious monument. "Just because the original plans were submitted to us on Jan. 1 by the Democrats," Anderson said "doesn't mean they are all bad and that we should reject them and start over."

The debate on the city hall issue lasted for more than one and one half hours with councilman Erickson and Weaver providing the opposition. The all GOP council kept more than 40 persons waiting while they attempted to hammer out their decision on the city hall matter at a closed door executive session.

In other action council accepted the deed to the property located at 52 W. Tenth st. and approved another resolution calling for the demolition of the house on the property at a cost of $800. Also meeting council approval was a $1000 contract authorizing an agreement with the Philadelphia Firm of Kendree & Shepherd to proceed with the next phase of the urban renewal project in the central business district as recommended by the city planning commission.

No action was taken on another resolution authorizing the mayor to enter into contract negotiations with the employe organization representing the police and fire dept., the Jamestown General Hospital Nurses Association and the Civil Service Employee's Association. The matter was tabled to the call of the chair.

Spilled Gravel Shatters Windshield

A minor mishap on Route 6 about two miles east of Clarendon Monday resulted in approximately $125 damage, according to state police of the local substation. The windshield of a car operated by Raymond H. Blymiller, Sheffield, was shattered, police stated, by gravel spilling from the bed of a Highway Dept. truck operated by David John Miller, 2836 Pennsylvania ave. W., Warren. No injuries were reported in the mishap which occurred about 11:35 a.m., according to police.

Two Car Crash

Two cars collided Saturday at 2:20 p.m. at the intersection of Routes 66 and 27015 at Pigeon, according to state police at Tionesta. Police identified the motorists as Raymond Cook, 24, of Warren and Alice Whitton, 26, RD3, Marienville. Neither operator was injured and both vehicles were driven from the scene.

Senate Sidesteps $53 Million Teachers' Salary Hike Bill

HARRISBURG (AP) — The Senate sidestepped a $53 million teachers' salary bill Monday, but adopted a resolution calling for creation of a citizens' commission to study ways of moderating the legislature.

The Republican caucus met for more than four hours on the controversial teachers' pay bill, but broke up no nearer to agreement than it had been when the meeting opened.

"We resolved nothing," Senate Majority Leader Stanley G. Stroup, R-Bedford, said after the session.

The Republicans scheduled a meeting for 10 a.m. Tuesday to make another attempt to decide a course of action on the pay bill. The Senate Education Committee, which is holding the bill, planned to meet at 1 p.m. Tuesday.

Bobby's Campaign Creates Excitement in Watts

(C) N.Y. Times News Service
LOS ANGELES — Sen. Robert F. Kennedy stood on a street corner in the heart of Watts today and looked out at a sea of black faces.

"How many of you want the kind of leadership you have had for the last two years?" he shouted. A chorus of boos arose from the crowd.

"How many of you would like to have Richard Nixon as president?"

A louder chorus of boos.

"How many of you will help me get elected president? A roar went up from the crowd.

"Then give me your help," he said. "Give me your hand. I need your help."

With that, he was carried back to his automobile as

Said Justified In Withholding Information

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — Mrs. Zella Moore, 22, was freed from the Erie County Jail Monday after a city court judge decided she was justified in withholding from police information about the whereabouts of escaped killer Winston Moseley, who was recaptured Thursday.

Mrs. Moore, the mother of three young children, said she was held by Moseley for five hours Wednesday after she went to clean a house where he was hiding from police.

She said she did not tell police after she was released because Moseley threatened to kill her and her children.

She was arraigned Monday afternoon on a charge of giving assistance in the third degree to a person who committed a felony.

She was released about four hours later. The misdemeanor charge carried a maximum sentence of one year upon conviction.

Mrs. Moore said Moseley, 33, was waiting when she entered the house Wednesday. He had called the State Employment Agency for a cleaning woman in hopes that he could steal her car. Mrs. Moore did not have a car, however.

She said she was tied up for most of the time she was in the house.

Moseley was captured in an apartment house on suburban Grand Island Thursday after holding two women and a child as hostages. He gave himself up to an FBI agent after the hostages escaped.

He escaped Monday from a hospital here where he had undergone minor surgery and was awaiting return to Attica State Prison.

He was serving a life sentence in Attica for the 1964 stabbing murder of barmaid Catherine "Kitty" Genovese in Queens.

Dies After Mishap

PITTSBURGH (AP) — A 50-year-old man who suffered a heart attack and fell eight feet from a scaffold at Westinghouse Electric Corp.'s Trafford plant died Monday.

The Allegheny County coroner's office said Wilbert Moore of Turtle Creek was hospitalized with head injuries after the accident March 6.

hundreds of black hands reached to touch him, as thousands of white hands have done during his whirlwind tour of California for the past two days.

The New York Senator drew a crowd of perhaps 2,000 to the streetcorner rally, far less than the throngs he had attracted yesterday in the Mexican-American section of the city, at the Greek theatre in Hollywood, and earlier today at San Fernando State College.

But the excitement his presence has generated elsewhere on his presidential campaign was present. As he rode down the flat dingy streets of Watts in shirtsleeves in an open car, his long hair blowing in the wind, Negro children crawled out of the windows and looped out to see him.

When he reached the corner of 103rd street and Graham avenue, where the crowd was waiting, he climbed atop a platform and attempted to speak over a public address system. But the microphones would not work, so he grabbed a portable mike, climbed on a chair and said:

"I want to find jobs for all our people. I want to find jobs for the black people of Watts and the white people of eastern Kentucky. I want to end prejudice and hatred and discrimination to stop, and I need your help. I want a reconciliation of blacks and whites in the United States."

He drew applause when he said, "I pledge to end the war in Vietnam. I pledge to you that when a young man of Watts goes to Vietnam and fights for his country and comes back home he will find equality and justice."

Earlier this morning, Kennedy addressed a crowd of about 10,000 students at San Fernando Valley State College. The Senator reminded the students of a remark attributed to Secretary of State Dean Rusk when he asked a reporter "which side are you on?"

Kennedy then said, "I am on the side of those who are not afraid to recognize past error, who refuse to blindly pursue bankrupt policies which will rend us from our friends and drain us of our treasure, in the fruitless pursuit of illusions long since shattered."

"I'm on the side of those who seek to reconcile our divisions in this great nation."

"I'm on the side of those who seek more than blind dissent, who respect the opinion of others. I'm on the side of those who do not shout down others; but who listen, challenge and then propose a better policy for America."

In a question period that followed, Kennedy was asked whether he approved of young men refusing to obey a military draft.

"I think he would have to face the consequences," the Senator said. "If I were to be called up, I would go. Each person has to examine his own conscience and do what he thinks is right."

Mighty Avenger Casts Off Tues. From Philly

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The USS New Jersey, in the reserve fleet more than 10 years, leaves Tuesday for sea trials designed to whip the 45,000-ton battleship into fighting trim for duty off Vietnam.

At 6 a.m., the New Jersey, once nicknamed the "Mighty Avenger," will cast off her lines at the Philadelphia Naval Shipyard and tug will nose her down the Delaware River toward the Atlantic.

For three days, Capt. J. Edward Snyder, his 1,400-man crew and shipyard personnel will put the battleship through her paces, testing hundreds of items of equipment.

The crew, drawn largely from other ships in the Atlantic Fleet, was fully mustered aboard only eight days ago. Only a few men, including Snyder, a former gunnery officer aboard the USS Pennsylvania, have battleship experience, since battleships have not plying the seas in more than a decade.

Reactivation of a battleship has been mullied over by the Navy ever since the United States became heavily engaged in Vietnam. As the loss of men and aircraft over North Vietnam mounted alarmingly, Navy brass argued the 16-inch guns of a battleship could safely lie far offshore and shell North Vietnam's coastal cities.

By September, the New Jersey—nearly as long as three football fields—should be on station in the Gulf of Tonkin. It won't, however, be a new experience for the ship—she shelled coastal defenses in North Korea during the Korean War.

The New Jersey's nine 16-inch guns, each capable of hurling 2,700-pound projectiles more than 20 miles, will not be tested, however, until after the battleship is recommissioned April 6.

About $22 million has been spent by the Navy in taking the battleship out of mothballs. When she joins the Pacific Fleet she will be home ported at Long Beach, Calif.

At 6 a.m., the New Jersey, once nicknamed the "Mighty Avenger," will cast off her lines at the Philadelphia Naval Shipyard and tug will nose her down the Delaware River toward the Atlantic.

For three days, Capt. J. Edward Snyder, his 1,400-man crew and shipyard personnel will put the battleship through her paces, testing hundreds of items of equipment.

The crew, drawn largely from other ships in the Atlantic Fleet, was fully mustered aboard only eight days ago. Only a few men, including Snyder, a former gunnery officer aboard the USS Pennsylvania, have battleship experience, since battleships have not plying the seas in more than a decade.

Reactivation of a battleship has been mullied over by the Navy ever since the United States became heavily engaged in Vietnam. As the loss of men and aircraft over North Vietnam mounted alarmingly, Navy brass argued the 16-inch guns of a battleship could safely lie far offshore and shell North Vietnam's coastal cities.

By September, the New Jersey—nearly as long as three football fields—should be on station in the Gulf of Tonkin. It won't, however, be a new experience for the ship—she shelled coastal defenses in North Korea during the Korean War.

The New Jersey's nine 16-inch guns, each capable of hurling 2,700-pound projectiles more than 20 miles, will not be tested, however, until after the battleship is recommissioned April 6.

About $22 million has been spent by the Navy in taking the battleship out of mothballs. When she joins the Pacific Fleet she will be home ported at Long Beach, Calif.

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The USS New Jersey, in the reserve fleet more than 10 years, leaves Tuesday for sea trials designed to whip the 45,000-ton battleship into fighting trim for duty off Vietnam.

Cable Named Supervisor Of Special Education

James William Cable, who has served as Warren County schools psychologist, has been appointed as Supervisor of Special Education for Warren County, commissioned by the Pennsylvania State Department of Public Instruction.

His appointment became effective March 23. The oath of office was formally administered by the Hon. Judge Alexander C. Flick at 11:30 a.m. Monday in the judge's chambers.

Cable succeeds Joseph Hoehling, who resigned last fall. In his new post, James Cable will be in charge of all special education in Warren County of all categories. This includes both the highly gifted and the retarded and handicapped.

There are at present fourteen classes in the county under his supervision; ten elementary, one trainable class, and three secondary. Elementary classes are held at Jefferson School (1), Tidoute, (1), Lander (2), Warren State Hospital (3), South St. (2), and Youngsville (1). Secondary classes are at Tidoute, Eisenhower and Youngsville. The one trainable class meets at Calvary Baptist Church.

Cable's appointment was confirmed at a special meeting of the Warren County School Board on March 21.

Cable is a native of Warren County. He was graduated from Russell High School and from Pennsylvania State University with a B.A. degree. He received his master's degree from the University of Pittsburgh. Additional graduate studies have been at University of Pittsburgh, Syracuse University, New York University and Columbia University.

Before becoming Warren County Schools psychologist, he taught in Youngsville Junior and senior high schools, and served as guidance counselor there for two years.

Students Protest At Tuskegee

TUSKEGEE, Ala. (AP) — Student discontent, which apparently had subsided earlier, broke out again Monday at predominantly Negro Tuskegee Institute and touched off a campus-wide class-room boycott.

Pickets carrying protest signs marched in front of some buildings to dramatize the demand for changes in school regulations.

There were no reports of violence. The Tuskegee Police Department and the Macon County Sheriff's office, both manned mostly by Negro officers, kept a close watch on the campus from a distance but took no official action.

Both Sheriff Lucius Amerson and Police Chief Eugene Harrison are Negroes.

In another development, Dr. P. B. Phillips, dean of students, said he had turned in his resignation. He said the student discontent "had something to do with it, but it was a small, minute part."

Phillips, 34, is a native of Berkeley, Calif. He taught at Hunter College in New York and worked for the National Urban League before joining the Tuskegee faculty five years ago.

One student who would not give his name said the boycott was touched off by the expressed fear among his classmates that committees set up to consider grievances outlined in talks with President L.H. Foster last week might take too long.

Some students—those in the School of Engineers—stayed away from class last Thursday. On the same day, the president had sent a letter to all students warning that the school might be closed if sporadic incidents of violence and what he called unauthorized campus meetings continued.

A student said Monday the students are demanding immediate action to change the conditions they complained about, and that the boycott would continue until "all the demands are met."

Among the demands outlined last week were a relaxation of the institute rule which makes ROTC training mandatory; institution of a policy of giving athletic scholarships; changes in the curfew rule, and improved housing conditions.

TV Cargo Stolen

DARLINGTON, Pa. (AP) — Police said Monday a tractor-trailer with a cargo of 241 television sets was stolen from the Herriott Truck Co.

The theft was discovered Sunday by a company official, Everett McGee of East Palestine, Ohio.

The TV sets were to have been delivered Monday to Johnstown, Pa.

FBI agents and state police are investigating.

Torture Instruments Bring $16,204 in Sotheby Auction

LONDON (AP) — This was grisly day at Sothebys, the auction house which deals mostly with things to enchant.

The offerings were hundreds of torture instruments from an 11th century Nuernberg castle. They included tongue tearers, racks, thumb screws, headmen's axes, an iron spider designed to rip flesh out of the body with four heated or frozen talons. There were head crowns, tin plates put on the head with spikes planted and screws arranged so they could be tightened. There were shackles, iron collars, branding irons, pillories, collars for common scolds and slow death devices.

The whole works brought $16,204 from various buyers.

The winner of the auction was the infamous "Iron Maiden," a 300-year-old figure dressed in 17th century Nuernberg virgin's costume. It was bought by a German private museum, otherwise unidentified, for $4,800.

The Iron Maiden is seven feet tall with a hollow inside and a trapdoor. It was used for some poor unfortunate on his final journey. He was put inside, the trapdoor opened and he went straight into a deep well.

A Continental buyer who insisted on being nameless spent $408 for a boat-shaped cradle with spikes inside it. When anybody was laid in it and the cradle was rocked, he (or she) had a pretty rotten time of it. It would take a person 5 feet 9 in height, which at the time of its creation was just about anybody.

A torture chair used to make women admit they were witches went for the same price.

The collection included collars to be put on common scolds so they could be driven through the streets with a drummer drawing attention to their plight. There were iron masks such as Dumas made famous in his novel. One was equipped with asses' ears and a candleholder, designed for the Spanish Inquisition. Another had a trumpet in the mouth for libelous and backbiting people. Part of the sale included as well an iron "mouth opener" and a "mouth closer."

Whips, scourges, flails, executioners' axes and metal "gloves" for hands which could well have done without them, made up the curious collection. It came from the estate of Henry Walters, of Baltimore, Md., who got it around the turn of this century from the Earl of Shrewsbury.

An official of Sothebys conceded it was a curious collection.

Educators Attend Convention

County Superintendent of Schools John Mallory Jr., and Dr. John M. Jacka, educational specialist for federal programs, are attending the annual winter convention of county school superintendents, March 25-27 at Pennsylvania State University.

A large part of the discussion is centered on the developments and studies concerning the coming intermediate school administrative units that will replace the present county offices.

It had been anticipated legislation contemplated would establish such intermediate units during 1968. This has been delayed, but is expected to become effective in 1969.

Warren County will be included in a larger unit composed of Warren, Crawford and Erie counties. In anticipation of this development the three counties have already established jointly a successful instructional materials center located at Edinboro State College, which serves the three counties.

The new intermediate unit will administer all school districts in the three counties.

Warren Native Given Fulmer Merit Award

Charles W. Brooks, a native of Warren who is presently controller at the Franklin Hospital in Franklin, has been given the William G. Fulmer Merit Award by the American Association of Hospital Accountants.

The award was established by the association to recognize individuals of the various local chapters for outstanding service and achievement in the hospital accounting field.

He is a member of the North-west Chapter of Hospital Accountants, a senior member of the American Association of Hospital Accountants and a past president and member of the board of directors of the north-west chapter.

Brooks is currently serving on the systems design advisory committee in setting up a hospital computer program for 30 hospitals.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Brooks, 512 Water St., Warren, Brooks is a graduate of Warren High School. During World War II he served with the Signal Corps in the 77th Division, spending two years in the Pacific Theater. He has been employed at the Franklin Hospital since 1951.

France Wants Overhaul Of Monetary System

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — France asked Monday for a complete overhaul of the world monetary and commercial system as its price for helping the United States out of financial troubles.

France, said Finance Minister Michel Debre, is willing to cooperate.

Debre came to Brussels Monday to sit as chairman at a meeting of cabinet ministers from the Common Market countries: France, West Germany, Italy, Belgium, Netherlands and Luxembourg.

The main purpose of the meeting was to consider plans for speeding up reductions in customs duties by other countries in order to encourage U.S. exports and to discourage pressure in Washington to enact broader taxes and other restrictions on U.S. imports.

Economists generally think it better to help the United States balance its international payments by stimulating trade rather than restricting it.

The Chamber of Commerce

This is Chamber of Commerce Week, marking the fifth such recognition given to the Chamber movement. Proclamations have been made by Governor Shafer and the Warren County commissioners—Dr. David K. Rice, Blain M. Mead and Thomas J. Donnelly—calling particular attention to our own Chamber of Commerce.

We feel these tributes should be well-earned and trust they will be as the many projects now planned by the local Chamber of Commerce under its new Program of Action are fulfilled.

A community's Chamber can advance commerce and industry, thus creating a healthy business climate which is essential to the welfare of a free society. But the role of the Chamber can exhibit a diversity of interests, thus making it an even more important organization.

To quote Dwight Havens, CCE, president of the American Chamber of Commerce Executives, "Voluntarism, is at the heart of the American tradition and Chambers of Commerce are one of the organizations most firmly devoted to the effectiveness of joint, cooperative action in the solution of 'all' major problems at local, state and national levels, as may be most fitting. Teamwork through and with Chambers of Commerce can bring practical, lasting answers to each of the challenging problems and opportunities being faced in the United States and other nations."

Aid to Africa

Dar Es Salaam, Tanzania: At the Arusha airport in Tanzania I saw several Africans cutting grass with scythes. Picturesque it was and certainly labor-absorbing, but scarcely a sign that this East Africa nation's technology is catching up with the 20th, much less preparing for the 21st, century.

At a lodge overlooking the Nile in Uganda, I saw men in mops to the soles of their feet and "s k a t e" across the floors. Graceful it was and in a way effective, but it was also an embarrassingly primitive way to dust a floor.

On the outskirts of all the cities we visited in East Africa last month, we saw thousands of huts made of mud and even of cow dung in which Africans were living in what seemed to me incredible squalor. Tempting though it was to photograph the Africans in their tribal dresses and habits, I now understand why African officials are trying to discourage the taking of pictures which dramatize the backwardness of the people.

These three illustrations, and I could add dozens more, focus on East Africa's greatest need from us now.

It is aid to educate and train the African so he can help himself, can develop his own economy, can lead his own tribes out of the dark ages. It is aid so the African worker can recognize and take advantage of the economic opportunities all around him. It is aid so the people can curb their high birth rate and improve their agricultural production to feed those who are born.

Education is a problem transcending almost all others. Despite the fact that elementary school enrollment in Tanzania, for instance, has jumped 53 percent since she won her independence from Britain in 1961, half of Tanzania's school age children still cannot go to school. Despite the fact that education is a prime goal of policy throughout the Continent, four out of five Africans cannot read or write.

Population is increasing at a rate which will double it before 2000. Food production is lagging far behind. Millions of East Africans are on a non-money standard; the average per capita income in even comparatively advanced Kenya is just crossing $100 a year.

I've heard people in the U.S. talk enthusiastically about a "Marshall Plan" for Africa. But even a short visit to this area must convince an objective observer how unrealistic, wasteful, and even harmful to our own interest, any approach of this sort would be.

Buildings, more jobs, even more sophisticated agricultural technology won't do the most for East Africa at this stage. What will accomplish near miracles are people educated to work in the buildings, people trained to get the maximum out of the jobs that already exist, farmers capable of pulling full yields out of the land they have. Even if the U.S. wanted to pour money into Africa, these fiercely proud nations will mightily refuse it. Loans, without strings, are welcome. Gifts they eye with suspicion, a hangover from the years of Britain's exploitation.

Most revealing is that none of the three East African nations, Kenya, Uganda, Tanzania, devalued the shilling in the wake of Britain's devaluation of the pound last November. Admittedly they had little to gain by devaluation: their chief exports of coffee, tea, cotton, sisal are affected by other forces than currency values. But regardless of the financial realities, the fact is that when the decision against devaluation was announced, the East African central bankers "were hailed as though they were victorious warriors," said an American stationed here.

"It was as though this was another signal of independence. The last tie to Britain had been cut."

Right now, we are parceling out our aid in minor totals and channeling much of it toward training of African administrators, providing educational equipment, financing libraries.

We are well down on the list of nations extending aid to the continent and we aren't knowing our weight around at all. We have no history of hated relationships to overcome and we are not creating fears of new domination.

At least in this part of the world, we so far seem to have made no major mistakes with our money.

GOP Torn Asunder

WASHINGTON—Now that Gov. Nelson Rockefeller has put himself out of the Republican presidential race, former Vice President Nixon seems to have the field to himself. I thought this would satisfy everyone until I ran into my friend, Trembling, a loyal member of the Republican Party.

Trembling was furious. "I don't know what Nixon expects to gain by continuing now. He's the only candidate left who hasn't bowed out."

"Maybe," I said, "Nixon feels that with no one else opposing him for the nomination, he could win for a change."

"Yes, but by running for the Republican nomination unopposed, all he's doing is dividing the Republican Party."

"I don't understand, Trembling," I said.

"It's quite simple. If Romney or Rockefeller had run against Nixon in the primaries it would have united the Republican Party. Republicans would have worked for their own candidates within the party. But now, with only Nixon running, the party is split right down the middle."

"I don't think Nixon should be blamed for this. After all, it was up to Romney and Rockefeller to run so the party wouldn't be split."

"Romney acted in good faith. He bowed out because he thought Rockefeller was going to run against Nixon."

"That I understand. But why did Rockefeller bow out?"

"Because he thought if he bowed out, then Nixon would bow out, too, and the unity of the Republican Party would have been preserved."

"Then Nixon doublecrossed Rocky by staying in the race?"

"He doublecrossed all of us. One of the reasons many of us in the Republican Party supported Nixon to start with is that we didn't think he had a chance," Trembling said. "How did we know he was so opportunistic and ruthless about going after the Republican nomination?"

"Doesn't Nixon know he's splitting the Republican Party by running alone?" I asked.

"Of course he knows it. We've pleaded with him. We've said, 'Dick, you've got the nomination for the asking. What more do you want to prove? Get out of the race before it's too late.'"

"He wouldn't listen?"

"He said, 'I don't care what it's doing to the party. I feel the issues are so important that I've got to get in the race, even if it means running unopposed.'"

"Well, you'll have to admit he has guts," I said.

"He has nothing to lose. If he wins the presidential election in November, everyone will consider it an upset. If he loses, the public will chalk it up to one more election that he's lost."

"Do you think there's still a chance that Nixon might bow out of the race?"

"He's running against himself in Oregon, and if he loses there, he may call it quits."

"By the same token," Trembling continued, "he might be stubborn enough to stick through until the Republican convention in August on the off chance that Rockefeller won't be drafted."

"From what you've said, then, the Republicans seem much more divided than the Democrats."

"They are. The Democrats have President Johnson, McCarthy and Kennedy fighting it out. They're united in giving the nomination to one of the three. But how can the Republicans be united when all they have to support is Nixon?"

make any sacrifice to win the war, for it was vital to our honor and security—there was little hope that they would even make the effort to unify their country and take over the effective prosecution of the war and the pacification of the villages.

Maybe it is beyond their capacity. Maybe they can't prevail unless we continue our search-and-destroy policy that is now in serious dispute in Washington, but at least the debate on all these things is now going on in Washington and the Saigon leaders know it.

These questions are now, at last, being seriously discussed by officials who have influence at a moment when critical decisions have to be made, and that is news. Nobody knows outside the White House, and maybe not even there at the moment, where it will come out, but the fact that it is being discussed is now known in Saigon and that is important.

For as long as the Saigon Government took our propaganda seriously—that we would

Rocky Was Victim of Rumors

WASHINGTON—During the days immediately prior to and after Governor Rockefeller's withdrawal from the Presidential race, this column was queried by newspapers and weekly magazines as to whether we were preparing a column on Rockefeller's private life.

Specifically, questions were asked regarding a report that Rockefeller had withdrawn from the race because of an impending column on this subject.

The answer is that we had investigated certain reports that Governor Rockefeller had developed a new romance and that his marriage to Happy was foundering. We found that, on the contrary, the Rockefeller second marriage is most harmonious and compatible. There was no truth to the report.

However, the important fact is that these reports had been deliberately circulated by Rockefeller's political enemies. Furthermore, they had been circulated so assiduously that they had won credence in the Eastern part of the United States, even including the name of an alleged girl friend.

It was impossible to trace the rumors to their exact origin, but it was ascertained they had been spread in part by supporters of Richard Nixon. It was also ascertained that Nixon has compiled dossiers on men who might challenge him for the Republican nomination.

At the time of the controversy over the two homosexuals on the staff of Gov. Ronald Reagan of California, it became known that Nixon's "Reagan file" was in the possession of ex-Congressman Pat Hillings, R-Calif., one of Nixon's close associates. Hillings could not leak information from the file, however, without Nixon's personal approval which, in this case, was not given.

We doubt very much whether Governor Rockefeller withdrew from the Presidential race because of these rumors. He has been sensitive about his divorce, and the possibility that it would be drawn into the Presidential race. Never has a divorced man been elected President.

We are certain, however, that the rumor mill is going to play a part in the coming campaign, and we write this to warn that the American public should be prepared for it.

Vice President Nixon, by his own public admission, believes in waging a "rocking, socking" campaign.

One who fully expects to get socked is President Johnson, who believes Nixon is watching for an opportunity to use the soft-on-communism charge against him. Indeed, this fear is one factor influencing the President today regarding his Vietnam policies. He has told intimates that he can't very well retreat from his hard line until Nixon declares where he stands on Vietnam. He believes there is more political danger in being accused of appeasement than of escalation.

WILLIAM F. BUCKLEY JR.

The Rubber Dollar

The financial crisis brings to mind the limitations of materialism. The swaggering talk over the last generation about the responsibilities of the rich nations to the poor nations, about the need to spend fifty, a hundred, two-hundred billion dollars to rebuild our cities, about our common responsibility to provide for each other's welfare, from the cradle to the grave: breaks down for lack of a couple of billion dollars. Literally. If the United States had earned a couple of billion dollars more last year, or spent that much less abroad, the crisis would not likely have erupted. It was building over a long period, and indeed is still building. But there is the straw that breaks the camel's back, and it is melancholy to face the fact that big-talk idealism has to submit, in the real world, to the measuring stick and the accounting book.

It has been a thesis of classical economics stressed and restressed over the years, that somehow, in some way, a people is going to have to pay for its extravagance. Consider what is now in prospect for Great Britain. Because the Labor Government has failed to take those measures which alone would substantially increase England's competitive prowess—primarily, a reduction in the cost of government and in the cost of production; that is to say, less government, and less labor unionism—England has talked itself into a situation which now argues, hold your breath, an interest rate of 10 per cent. That fantastic rate of interest is an affront on one of the most cherished dogmas of the economic interventionists, Lord Keynes at one point signalled out cheap interest rates as perhaps the central consideration, above all others, for the happy functioning of the economy. The hardship of an interest rate set that high can only be imagined by those who have had the dream of a private house dashed by the cost of borrowing the money.

The British will argue that the proposed 10 per cent rate is not by any means altogether the result of Britain's mismanagement, but partly of America's. There is a half-truth there. The proposed increase in the rediscount rate of the Federal Reserve requires self-protective action by England to arrest a flow of money going to high interest borrowers in the United States. But America's plight to begin with is the result of the same virus that overtook Britain. And Britain's dependence on the United States is related to her habit over the years of leaning on the United States rather than face economic reality. Now the United States is too concerned to maintain its own equilibrium, to act as a soft perch for other nations.

The temptation is to blame it all on France, France has, to be sure, acted churlishly, and there is no doubting, at this point, that General de Gaulle is obsessed by his spite. But, at this point, de Gaulle believes that events have justified him. Just as the banker who calls the depression will be hated by his community, but adored by the depositors, de Gaulle takes the position that consistent mismanagement of the economy by the United States was making the dollar a bad gamble; and he proved correct. What right has the United States to expect other countries to honor our mismanagement? There is a sense in which one can feel, in turn perversely, grateful to

In short, the President would rather be attacked by the doves than by the hawks. Meanwhile, the political battle, like the war in Vietnam, will be escalating.

Bobby Kennedy will be on the spot this week as to whether he puts consumers or politics first. He'll also have an interesting conflict between his No. 1 adviser, Ted Sorensen, and Sorensen's No. 1 law client, General Motors.

It happens that Bobby has done an excellent job of putting the heat on the big motor moguls to improve their safety practices. He has been a staunch supporter of Sen. Abe Ribicoff, D. Conn., who pioneered for better automobile safety. Ribicoff is calling the auto manufacturers before his committee on March 29 to probe their increased costs and whether they are justified by increased safety.

Both Ribicoff and Kennedy have been skeptical, and had planned to subject representatives of the four automobile companies to tough cross-examination.

However, this was before Bobby Kennedy got into the Presidential swim. It was also before Ted Sorensen began writing speeches for him. Sorensen happens to be the attorney for General Motors, the No. 1 company scheduled to be put on the griddle in the March 29 hearings.

What the motor moguls are hoping is that Senator Kennedy will take a run-out powder that day. It will be interesting to see whether he puts the public interest or his political interest first.

Wisconsin Cross-Over—GOP leaders have passed the word to Republican voters to cross over into the Democratic primary on April 2 and cast their ballots for Sen. Eugene McCarthy. The idea is to embarrass President Johnson and sharpen the split in the Democratic Party. It will also take votes away from Richard Nixon and help Gov. Ronald Reagan of California, whose name is on the ballot but he has made no effort to seek votes. If many Republicans cross over, it could cause Nixon more embarrassment than it could LBJ.

Brass-Hat Crack-Down—Rep. Joe Resnick, D-N.Y., has been trying for several weeks to get a copy of the first hearings on Cmdr. Marcus Arnheiter held at Subic Bay, but had been given the rumor. Even Commander Arnheiter has been refused a copy of his own trial at which the top brass in the Navy decided to fire him without further hearings. It's a well established rule of evidence that the accused has the right to see what he's accused of, but Arnheiter has been denied this privilege.

Continue War in Vietnam?—Secretary of State Dean Rusk told a group of religious leaders off-the-record that no matter who is elected President in November, the new President will not change our basic Vietnam policies. Rusk said he couldn't believe that any of the Presidential candidates would fail to keep our commitments to South Vietnam. (Apparently he included Bobby Kennedy and Eugene McCarthy).

MASON DENISON

Who Is Checking?

HARRISBURG—The question is asked frequently, and it is perhaps particularly appropriate this year when Pennsylvania's lawmakers are busy standing for re-election, namely: who checks on the Legislature?

It is a good question, particularly when one stops to think of all the checks and counter-checks that have been built in to surround other functions of government—more particularly the executive branch headed by His Excellency.

The query particularly arises when a new administration takes over control of Pennsylvania's executive branch, but it seems to follow almost every other year too.

At first blush as a new administration moves into office the question never occurs. It isn't until the Legislature starts its scrutiny of the administration's budget requests that the question suddenly dawns on some naive member of the new administration.

About the only reason the query dawns even at this point is the fact that the probing legislative budgetary committees start inquiring (as now) into the why of this or that proposed budgetary expenditure by the executive branch.

This look-see venture on the part of the legislative branch seemingly has a tendency to raise hair on the executive branch—which in its newness has assumed that no one dare seriously question the (authoritative) figures spelled out by the Governor's Office.

As the fact dawns that the legislative branch not only has the right but also the responsibility to question, the inevitable defense begins to form with the sly under-the-table query of: "Yes—but who checks on the legislative branch?"

The new and naive "student of government" has missed the one critical point in submitting the query.

The legislative branch—under Pennsylvania's Constitution—is just about "the" top branch of government; it can impeach the Governor (titular head of the executive branch); it can impeach a member of the judicial branch.

The legislative branch is responsible to no one—no one, that is except the people themselves who directly elect the members of the Legislature, who will be doing just that this year.

For those then who complain over the time-worn question of "who checks on the legislative branch"—a look at the facts of life might be interesting.

In the first place this check and double-check has to stop somewhere; it can't go endlessly to the point of obvious absurdity of who checks on the checker of the checker of the checker, etc.

The line has to be drawn somewhere and under terms of the Constitution—which has to be the guiding light—"direct" checking ends with the legislative branch.

To carry it further is just about as absurd as to inquire as to who "checked" on the old Russian OMD!

The fact remains the legislative branch (again under terms of the Constitution) is "supposed" to know what it is doing; the trust has therein been placed.

If it isn't carrying out its constitutional mandates in proper or fetching fashion—as for example, indulging in alleged grandiose spending or over-representing on itself—the only recourse then is for the citizenry to "throw out the old beggars." (It has happened in the past and it could happen anytime again.)

The Legislature may propose appropriating itself $6 million a year to run its functions. "Who's going to 'check' on the Legislature?" No one is but anyone may! The legislative branch is the end of the check-points—from a functional administrative standpoint—period.

After all, it's got to end somewhere—and it might better be with 253 sets of eyes than one!

THE HARRIS SURVEY

For the first time since the United States became heavily engaged in the war in Vietnam, the American people's confidence in this country's ability to handle the situation there by military means has sharply declined.

By 52 to 31 per cent, the people are opposed to sending another 100,000 U.S. troops to Vietnam.

After his return to this country late last fall, Gen. William Westmoreland received 68 to 16 per cent positive marks from the public for his military performance. Now, after the recent Tet Communist offensive, this confidence has slipped to 52 to 35 per cent positive.

Stemming from these doubts about this country's military capabilities in Vietnam, basic support for the Administration's policy on the war has slipped from 74 per cent six weeks ago to 54 per cent today.

Immediately on the heels of the Tet offensive came a rallying of the people behind the war effort. The sober, second assessment of the public about that engagement has now led a majority of 60 per cent to believe the Tet offensive was at best a stand-off, or even a defeat for the American cause.

The lowest point in support of our policy in Vietnam was recorded last October, when only 51 per cent expressed a favorable view.

The prevailing feeling in the country now must be described as one of deep frustration that many people articulate as "get it over with or get out." Yet it is clear that in its current mood, the public is hesitant to escalate the present military effort.

Here are key findings on specific military measures asked about in a just-completed survey of a carefully drawn cross section of 1,601 households across the country.

Since December, sentiment has shifted against mining of the supply harbor of Haiphong in North Vietnam from 4 to 3 in support to 4 to 4 opposed.

Support for an invasion of North Vietnam by U.S. and South Vietnamese troops has slipped from 49 to 29 per cent favorable in December to today's response of 44 to 36 per cent favorable.

Opposition to the bombing of Communist supply lines and air fields in China continues at better than 2 to 1.

By 56 to 24 per cent, the public still opposes the use of atomic ground weapons in the Vietnam struggle.

It is clear from these results that most Americans prefer a limited course in the Vietnamese war. By an overwhelming 72 to 13 per cent, the public believes "we are right in trying to stop the Communists without getting Chinese or Russian troops into the war." The prevailing desire of the American people is that the country's leaders find a way to bring the Communists to the negotiating table by using present troop commitments and forces in Vietnam.

Here is the trend of the rating accorded Gen. Westmoreland on his handling of the war in the field. The cross section was asked this question last December and again in March:

"How would you rate the job that Gen. William Westmoreland has done in handling the war in Vietnam -- excellent, pretty good, only fair or poor?"

	RATING OF JOB DONE BY WESTMORELAND	MARCH	DECEMBER
	PER CENT	PER CENT	PER CENT
Good-excellent	52	68
Only fair-poor	35	16
Not sure	13	16

Back in December, the high ratings for Westmoreland contrasted sharply with President Johnson's low rating for his war leadership. At that time only 34 per cent gave Mr. Johnson high marks on his overall conduct of the war. Today, the President's positive rating is still lower, down to 30 per cent, but it has slipped only 4 points compared with an erosion of 16 points for the military leader of the field forces in Vietnam.

The decline of confidence in the military is reflected in the latest figures in support of U.S. policy in Vietnam. Here is the trend derived from a special Harris Survey four-part attitude scale which has been asked repeatedly:

	BASIC SUPPORT OF WAR POLICY	MARCH, 1968	DECEMBER, 1967
	SUPPORT LEVEL	PER CENT	PER CENT

February	74
December, 1967	61
November	55
October	51

PROJECT HAT BOXES — Lovely hatboxes are being made for patients at Warren State Hospital for Easter, and help would be appreciated. Mrs. Nelson Bonning and Mrs. Harley Smith dreamed up the idea, and so far have made twenty-four of them. What they need more of are Troyer potato chip drums and colorful leftover wallpaper. They'd like to make 500 of the hatboxes, so lots of manpower help would be appreciated also. Any organization, or individual, interested in helping is asked to contact Mrs. Bonning at 726-0194, or Mrs. Smith at 757-8120. Donations of drums and wallpaper may be left at the Kiser Book Store, 224 Pennsylvania ave. W., no later than this Friday, April 5.

This Week's YWCA Speaker

REV. HOWARD R. FAULKNER

The speaker at Wednesday's YWCA Lenten Service will be the Rev. Howard R. Faulkner, pastor of the First Baptist Church. His topic will be "From Carnival To Cross." This third session of the series will begin at 10 a.m. Miss Viola Lindmark, member of the YWCA Board of Directors, and choir director of the First Baptist Church, will preside at the service. Members of the Dessert Club will be hostesses for the 9:45 a.m. coffee hour. All interested members and friends of the "Y" are invited, and, reminded that a free baby-sitting service is available for the occasion.

Watson Home Ext. Group Program By Sharon Corey

The Watson Home Extension Group met recently at the home of Mrs. William Snavey. Fourteen members enjoyed the program on arranging pictures which was presented by Mrs. Sharon Corey. An opinion was voiced on each slide as to whether the pictures were attractively displayed, balanced and framed; if improvements were needed recommendations were given.

Since Mrs. Corey is soon leaving her post as assistant home economist, she was presented a corsage and gift in appreciation of her willing assistance. A cake was baked and decorated for the occasion by Mrs. Gertrude Edmiston and Mrs. Virginia Watson.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Leslie Barnes on April 3 at 7:30 p.m.

With summer approaching, many children want to wear tennis shoes. Parents ask us, "are they good for the feet?" They surely are, if properly constructed. Most of us have experienced the foot pleasure of walking barefoot on the soft sand at the beach. Corns and callouses do not hurt, and in time often disappear. In nature, our feet were designed to walk mostly on resilient grass or soft ground. The shock of walking on hard pavements and floors accounts for much of the foot trouble, as well as leg and back trouble in city life today.

Naturally, a cushiony rubber sole, as found in many tennis shoes, is a pleasant relief to the feet. However, the wise parent will distinguish between the cheap shoe with a thin, hard rubber sole with no arch support and a thick, resilient sole with good built-in arch support. In this important respect, some tennis shoes are excellent while others are deceiving. In our store, we can indicate the difference to you.

"COMFORT AND CONVENIENCE"

GETTING THE MOST OUT OF SPACE is a common decorating problem . . . for apartment dwellers, homes where rooms are small, even in big houses where the families are even bigger. You can find many ingenious ways to make the most of space. The neat, out-of-the-way corner cupboard in a dining area is a good idea borrowed from yesterday, if you don't have room for a large buffet.

An intriguing bedroom storage idea is to put an extra chest in a closet. Does that sound impractical? Well, if you look over the contents of your closet, you'll find that pretty close to half the things on hangers are short — blouses, sweaters, coats, and the like. You can divide your closet so that long pieces hang over a chest placed on one side . . . with long pieces on the other side.

Another bedroom storage idea, where space is at a premium, is to use larger, roomier chests in place of night stands on each side of the bed.

Handsome chests — to place in bedrooms, halls, living rooms, just about anywhere — are very much in vogue today. You'll find a really handsome selection in our showroom, in styles and sizes to answer your needs — and your space problems! Come in and look them over.

Warren Area High School To Present 'Sound Of Music'

The students of Warren Area High School will present Rodgers and Hammerstein's "The Sound of Music" on April 25, 26, and 27. The final creation of these innovative writers, the musical play depicts characters, situations, and conflicts unusual to the popular stage. How could one convey an anti-Fascist Baron's courageous efforts to elude storm troopers and to flee to freedom? How could the skilled collaborators tell the true story of postulant Maria Rauber's love for the von Trapps? How could the authors create a grim mood forebodingly touched with drama and tragedy to contrast with a radiant, romantic love? Rodgers and Hammerstein did just this!

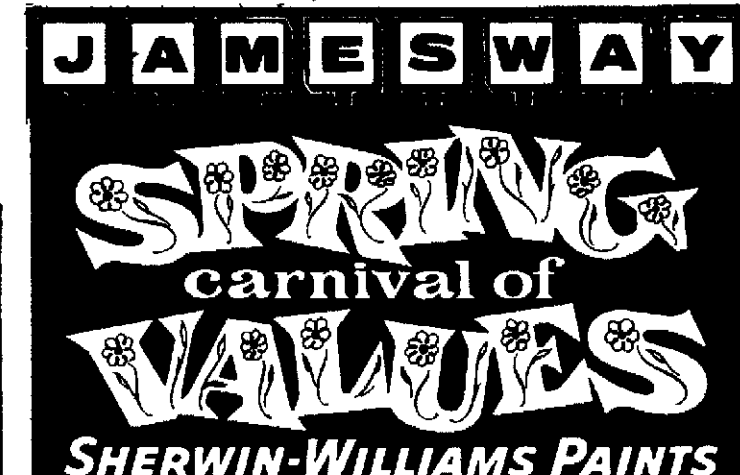

From the a cappella "Praeludium" instead of the traditional orchestral overture, Rodgers injected into the popular score several chants simulating church music. He interspersed musical fragments throughout the dialogue to heighten emotion, to accentuate the mood, and to serve as a transition. In fact, he called upon music to perform a far more important function in telling the story and in delineating character than the musical theater had ever known.

Librettist Oscar Hammerstein II based his dialogue and lyrics upon the autobiographical Trapp Family Singers, a best-seller written by the Countess Maria von Trapp. His carefully executed script enabled Richard Rodgers to write memorable tunes such as Mary Martin's "Do, Re, Mi," "My Favorite Things," and "The Hills Are Alive With the Sound of Music" almost instantly.

Ann Landers

Answers Your Problems

DEAR ANN LANDERS: If you don't have egg on your face it's not because you don't deserve it. I'll bet you hear plenty from your readers about your prescribed outlet for anger. You advocated trying to break an egg by squeezing it in the palm of the hand.

If the egg is held vertically in the palm, your scheme is O.K., but if the egg is held sideways — watch out. Exactly why the egg defends itself when held vertically, I do not know. It has to do with some structural reason which I've never been able to understand.

One bright note: Anyone who tries Ann Landers' remedy for anger will surely succeed, in that he will stop being mad at the original object and he'll be mad at YOU instead. — F. S., OF WASHINGTON, D. C.

DEAR F.S.: I have already received enough letters on this subject to write a sequel to "The Egg And I." One reader sent me the splattered egg — in an envelope. A million apologies, folks. The yolk's on me. + + +

DEAR ANN LANDERS: After 10 years of what I thought was a good marriage my wife suddenly became bored and found herself a lover. I remained patient thinking she would get over it, but I was wrong. She wants a divorce.

My reward for 10 years of devotion is that she will take my children and use my hard-earned money to pay her lawyer for cutting my throat. While the divorce is going through she and the children will move into an apartment and I must pay for that, too.

Everyone has the impression that it is always the husband who plays around. If this had been the case I would have felt that I got what I deserved, but it just isn't so.

The divorce laws in this country are shamelessly slanted in favor of the wife. It is criminal. Why isn't something done to make these laws more equitable? It is too late to help me but it would help other defenseless husbands whose conniving wives want to give them the works. — PILLORIED

DEAR PILLORIED: You MUST have a lawyer. What does he say? It is difficult for me to believe that you are as blameless as your letter suggests. I agree that the divorce laws in many states strongly favor the wife, particularly if there are children, but this is ridiculous. + + +

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I was shocked at the letter from the man who had the nerve to sign himself "Honest Abe." He practically went into orbit because the postman didn't put stamps on his greeting cards and gifts — just left them in the mailboxes. Hasn't that idiot got anything better to complain about? And YOU — are you trying to tell me that when our paper boy and the neighborhood children leave cards in the mailbox they are breaking the law?

People who are considerate and thoughtful should be praised, not threatened. Shame on you. — GIRLS OF DEPARTMENT NO. 22

DEAR GIRLS: I'm not trying to tell you anything. All I'm trying to do is give correct advice. I didn't write the law, I am merely informing the public that such a law exists. I agree, it sounds loony, but nevertheless there is indeed a $300 fine for leaving cards and gifts in the mailbox without stamps. There is no fine, however, for ringing the bell and handing the card or gift to the occupant. + + +

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

The two also visited in Miami and Coco Beach, Florida, while on their two-week vacation.

WINE AND ANXIETY

Wines are useful in the most prevalent of all disease conditions—anxiety, according to a leading physician. According to Dr. Russel V. Lee, clinical professor of Medicine at Stanford University, "the moderate use of wine while eating is the pleasantest and probably the most effective tranquilizer known to medical men."

Wednesday Circle Entertained

The Wednesday Circle of the Russell WSCB met at the home of Mrs. Bernice Peterson with Mrs. Donald Korb assisting hostess. A bountiful tureen dinner was enjoyed by 14 members and 2 guests.

Mrs. Charles Swanson presided at the business meeting and Mrs. Peterson gave devotions, reading from the 13th Chapter of John, and displayed the picture "The Last Supper" painted by her late husband. She told about the original painting and named the position in the picture of each disciple. For the program, Mrs. Richard Enos read about the Tyrant Methodist Mission in West Virginia. It was voted to send $25.00 to the Meadville Home for the Aged.

Suggestions were made about bringing articles for the fall bazaar and Sidewalk Festival. A letter from Mrs. Joseph Swanson, a former member, was read and a thank you from the Ruth M. Smith Home, and Mrs. Benton Bairdow thanked the group for plant and cards sent her while in the hospital. A Chinese Auction was held which netted $15.00.

Mrs. Leonard Garvin's and Mrs. Mabel Nelson's names were added to the roll. The next meeting will be held at the church with Mrs. Flora Martin and Mrs. Paul Lindell as hostesses.

There are a lot of great things about Gas heat. You take them for granted. Clean, circulating, whole-house heat seems as natural as . . . fresh air. But the biggest thing about Gas heat is the littleness of the cost—about one-third the cost of electric heat. Maybe the cost of heating your home with Gas doesn't seem like such a big thing to you.

That's because it isn't.

An apparently innocuous spot card—the five of spades—played a crucial role in this hand taken from a recent World Championship contest between the United States and Italy. Possession of the spade five by West resulted in a thousand point saving on the deal for the Americans.

At the table where the United States team held the North-South cards, the bidding proceeded as depicted in the diagram. A contract of four spades was reached with North as the declarer. The king of hearts was led and North proceeded to make an overtrick by ruffing two hearts in dummy and taking a successful diamond finesse in order to establish that suit. In all, he lost only two trump tricks. The profit to the United States was 450 points [150 for the trick score plus 300 for a nonvulnerable game].

At the other table, Italy held the North-South hands and proceeded to reach a somewhat aggressive contract of six diamonds, and with the aid of some favorable distribution South, the declarer, nearly succeeded in landing the slam.

The American defender in the West seat, opened the three of hearts and East's queen dislodged declarer's ace. A small diamond was led and dummy's jack was successfully finessed. The king and ace of diamonds were played, clearing up the trump situation.

Declarer led the nine of spades and West covered with the queen to force out dummy's king. The closed hand was reentered with the ace of clubs so that South could put thru the seven of spades. West was careful to cover this spot with the eight and North's ten won the trick.

A heart ruff put declarer in again to lead the six of spades. West topped him once more with the jack—driving out the ace.

The only outstanding spades at this point were the dummy's four and West's five. Had their possession been reversed, declarer would have had a parking place for one of his small clubs. As matters stood, he was obliged to play the ace and another club in the hope that the suit would divide evenly. When East proved to have both missing clubs, however, he was able to take two tricks in the suit to set the slam contract.

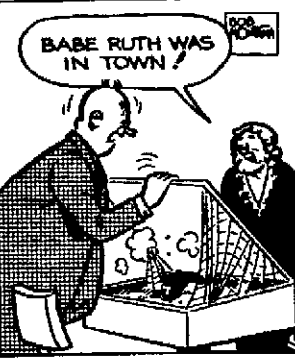

America's profit on the deal totaled 500 points—50 for the set plus the 450 obtained at the other table.

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is according to the stars.

TUESDAY, MARCH 26, 1968

ARIES (March 21 to April 20)—Review BEFORE you begin day's schedule, to determine whether you are following best precepts, system. If there is need for revision or alterations, make promptly. A fine day for quality effort.

TAURUS (April 21 to May 21)—Others would like to hear your ideas on subjects of mutual interest—and you must listen to theirs with due deference. Stress your innate graciousness.

GEMINI (May 22 to June 21)—No matter what your calling, or what outside activity you planned for this day, you may have to mark time till OTHERS are ready, so don't chafe or fret; use the time for re-evaluating.

CANCER (June 22 to July 23)—A splendid period for making the most of your talents, displaying your keenness. You can profit by your good judgment and fundamental soundness. Don't neglect details, however.

LEO (July 24 to August 23)—Avoid extremes and don't misjudge others' intentions or actions. Work may seem strenuous, people around you harder to get along with, but YOU can cope with days like this.

VIRGO (August 24 to September 23)—You have taken some action you now wish you had not. Waste no time in anxiety; just recognize and amend. You may receive an unexpected gift.

LIBRA (September 24 to October 23)—Increasing advantages indicated, but some may be hidden, so you will have to ferret them out for yourself. Use ALL of your talents—even latent ones.

SCORPIO (October 24 to November 22)—You cannot measure all things by a rigid set of rules, yet some standards MUST be set if things are to work out well. Ignore those who disagree with your fine principles.

SAGITTARIUS (November 23 to December 21)—Complications may arise, and you will increase instead of decrease them if careless. Be alert, therefore, and take all steps necessary to iron out pending problems as efficiently as possible. Don't scatter energies, however.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 20)—Favorable influences. Be eager to improve all situations, particularly in "small" details, so often overlooked or considered minor. Shun foolish risks.

AQUARIUS (January 21 to February 19)—Trade ideas, reach for the wider horizons. They broaden as you gain more ground, knowledge. Think big, but do not step so briskly that you slip up or pass an opportunity by.

PISCES (February 20 to March 20)—You are among the few with very auspicious planetary influences. Especially favored: Research, engineering, the medical profession and science generally.

YOU BORN TODAY are endowed with a bright mind and would make an excellent companion, secretary or teacher, but you are not always as patient as you should be. You have a strong mind; are willing to fight for sound causes, and quick to detect them. You can go far with your spunk, vitality and willingness to carry a big load with dignity. Birthdate of: Tennessee Williams, American playwright.

How to Keep Well

By Dr. T. R. Van Dellen

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made when return stamped envelope is inclosed. Telephone inquiries not accepted. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases. ALCOHOLISM SHORTENS LIFE

Alcoholism causes more deaths than many of us realize. Official statistics obtained from death certificates do not bear this out because it is not mentioned as a contributory factor because of the stigma associated with overimbibing. This includes more than half the highway fatalities.

Another example is what alcoholism does to the heart. In addition to doing microscopic damage to heart muscles, booze creates a definite burden on the organ by increasing its work. We do not refer to a cocktail or two before dinner, but to heavy drinking. Many persons who go to bed after a bender awaken several hours later with the heart beating hard and fast. This symptom may lead to a fatal heart attack when the individual has narrowed or obstructed coronary arteries.

Alcohol is responsible for a variety of nervous and mental disorders. The same can be said of digestive disturbances including alcoholic pancreatitis which tends to recur and may lead to diabetes. Death from cirrhosis of the liver is common, but alcoholism rarely is noted on the death certificate. Even skid-row drunks are reported as dying from malnutrition or pneumonia.

Liquor also causes many fatalities from drowning, burns, and falls. Blood studies by the coroner often reveal a high alcohol level in accidents of these types. A tipsy sailor falls down concrete steps at the wharf and injures his head or the member of a fishing party becomes inebriated and overturns the boat and drowns. The number of fires started by a stuporous smoker lying on the couch or in bed are too numerous to mention. Alcohol as cause of death never is mentioned on the coroner's report.

Homicide and drinking go together like ham and eggs. Minor disagreements among drinkers often have a fatal ending. Almost 50 per cent of suicides are attempted or culminated while drinking. All of this explains why the life span of an alcoholic is reduced many years.

TOMORROW: Tongue Talk.
Dr. Van Dellen will answer questions on medical topics if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request.

PHLEBITIS AFTER SURGERY
W. D. writes: Why does phlebitis occur after an operation?

REPLY
Because inactivity slows down the flow of blood in the veins, which encourages clotting. In other instances, the veins have been injured thru trauma or by the necessary procedures. Furthermore, the clotting mechanism is altered during surgery. We have a leaflet on phlebitis which may be obtained by sending stamped, self-addressed envelope with request.

HANGOVER IN MOUTH
A. J. writes: After drinking alcoholic beverages on week-ends, a bad taste remains in my mouth for three days. How can I get rid of it without giving up alcohol?

REPLY
Many would like to know the answer to this. You can't have your cake and eat it, too.

SPREAD OF SCABIES
A reader writes: Can the itch be transmitted thru infected linen and bedding?

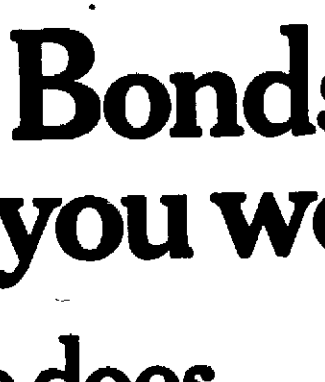

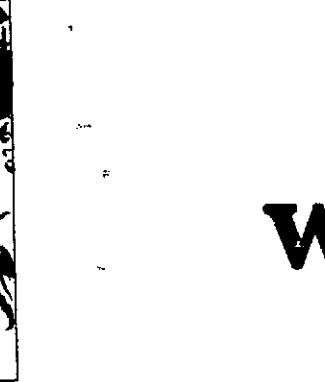

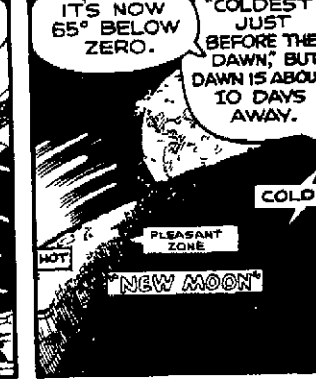

REPLY
Yes. This is why clothing, linen, and bedding must be washed or dry cleaned whenever a case of scabies appears in a household.

WHITE SPOTS ON NAILS
B. T. writes: What are those small white spots that appear on the fingernails? I would also like to know what causes them?

REPLY
These usually represent injury to the nail.

TODAY'S HEALTH HINT—Ice water relieves the pain of burns.

Mat Wrap-Up (Whew!)

Just one final wrestling column—and we do mean final. (A-minus-5 days and counting.) That loud noise you just heard was a collective cheer by the basketball fans.

The weekend wrapped up the grappling season, and even the most avid fan must have had his fill if he sat through all the sessions at Penn State's Rec Hall.

There were 102 colleges and universities represented by 382 wrestlers. If you were present for the first match on Thursday, then sat through every bout including the unlimited championship on Saturday night, you would have seen 464 matches.

That's a lot of wrestling.

The team title was Oklahoma State's 26th in 38 years and Coach Myron Roderick's 7th. A colorful little man (he won the 130-pound championship three times) was ecstatic when Dwayne Keller upset defending champ Rick Sanders at 123. He wasn't so sure he could win the team trophy but his matmen were positive.

Even with Keller's triumph, the Cowboys didn't clinch the trophy until Mike Grant of Oklahoma was pinned by Dale Bahr of Iowa State in the 145-pound finale. That put Oklahoma out of it and gave Iowa State second place.

Keller has a twin brother, Darrell, who was "red-shirted" this season and who actually convinced Dwayne that Sanders was not invincible. In all fairness, it must be noted that Sanders injured his neck, either before or during the match, and appeared for pictures wearing a support collar.

Don't think that all the championship matches were exciting. In the 191-pound final, for example, both Carollo and Kline were warned for stalling in the first period. Carollo was hit with another point again early in the third stanza and Kline lost another with 18 seconds left that tied the score at 3-3 and sent the match into overtime.

One sport scribe speculated that if both were penalized again, a two-point award, then the fourth time for disqualification, Gary Cook of East Stroudsburg would be the 191-pound champ. He won all his consolation bouts for third place.

That record on sophomore Dan Gable, 130-pound champ, was not a misprint. He was 82-0 in high school (three-time State Champ) and 54-0 in college before entering the tournament.

Jess Lewis of Oregon State, runner-up to Dave Porter in the unlimited class, won the "Pin Award." He registered three falls during the tourney in an aggregate time of 6 minutes, 38 seconds.

When Porter defeated Michigan State's Jeff Smith in the semifinals, 7-1, it was the first time he had won over the Spartan heavyweight in three meetings this season. Smith pinned him in a dual meet and decisioned him, 3-2 in the Big 10 tourney.

Only four top-seeded grapplers won titles: Lock Haven's Ken Melchior at 115, Dave Anderson of Michigan State at 137, Oklahoma's Wayne Wells at 152, and Mike Gallego, 167-pounder from Fresno State.

Reportedly, a Lock Haven freshman defeated Melchior in practice last week.

Reginald Wicks of Iowa State, who whipped top-seeded Cleo McGlory of Oklahoma at 160, was only the sixth seed in the division.

Two Indiana State wrestlers had to forfeit matches on Thursday because their coach was confused about the schedule. They were in their motel rooms resting when they should have been on the mats.

Tim McCall, ex-Erie Strong Vincent ace, looked great in winning his consolation bouts for third place at 123. He had lost a semifinal match to Sanders by a 12-2 score. Also impressive in the consi round on Saturday afternoon were Navy's Pete Vanderlofske (137), Fred Fozzard of Oklahoma State (177), and East Stroud's Gary Cook (191). The latter handled Penn State star Rich Lorenzo, 8-3.

It was the first color telecast of any event from Rec Hall, slated for future viewing on ABC's "Wide World of Sports."

Leroy Alitz of Army was elected president of the NCAA Wrestling Coaches Association for 1968-69.

Brigham Young University at Provo, Utah, will host the 1969 NCAA tourney.

It took an estimated 400 people to run the tourney, rated the best ever by veteran observers.

Visiting coaches, grapplers, fans and members of the press were impressed with fan attendance. After Penn State's grapplers were all eliminated, Lock Haven led the way for fan support. (We keep telling you that's a wrestling town!)

The trip back to Warren was less enjoyable. With the snowfall and extremely hazardous driving conditions, it took two-and-one-half hours to make it to DuBois. Add a flat tire during the DuBois-to-Warren leg on Sunday morning.

It's only about 30 miles from Penn State to Lock Haven, if you're interested.

The Lock Haven Express had two writers and a photographer covering the tourney. Also in attendance were Ralph Bernstein and Ira Miller of The Associated Press.

NCAA WRESTLING CHAMPIONS

Champions at the 38th annual NCAA Wrestling Tournament at Penn State on Saturday were (left to right): kneeling—Ken Melchior, Lock Haven State (115); Dwayne Keller, Oklahoma State (123); Dan Gable, Iowa State (130); Dale Anderson, Michigan State (137); and Dale Bahr, Iowa State

Houston's Hayes Decides Against Olympic Tryouts

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Elvin Hayes said Monday he has made a final decision that he will not compete for a spot on the Olympic basketball team.

"I have to work on my game to make a pro team," said the University of Houston star, collegiate basketball's second-highest scorer in history.

Hayes said he and his family are in need of money and that participation in the Olympic trials would conflict with preparations for his entry into pro basketball. He said he has not been contacted by anyone who has proposed that Negro athletes boycott the Olympics.

Hayes made his decision upon returning from Los Angeles where the Cougars had their 31-0 season record spoiled by losses to UCLA and Ohio State in the NCAA semifinals and third place games.

"I have to look out for myself and my family," Hayes said. "If I go to the Olympics and get hurt, I have nothing. Nothing would come to me or my family, it would be zero-zero. A lot of pro players tell me I need a lot of work and I don't want to be a failure to my mother and my family. I'm not thinking of myself."

Hayes had said previously he would be proud to compete in the Olympics.

He said Monday he plans to ask $300,000 over a three-year period for his first pro contract. He said he currently favors the National over the new American pro league.

The Houston Mavericks have said they have the ABA's negotiations rights for Hayes.

Alcindor Voted Tourney's Best

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Lew Alcindor, UCLA's 7-foot-1½ star who led the Bruins to their second straight national collegiate basketball title, received two honors Monday.

He was voted the outstanding player in the NCAA championships which ended Saturday night and also Southern California player-of-the-year.

Three Sheffield Cagers On AML All-Star Squad

Wayne Swanson Selected 'Most Valuable' at Fete

Three Sheffield High cagers—Wayne Swanson, Robbie Hart and Jeff Scalise—have been named to the Allegheny Mountain League All-Star team, Wolverine Head Coach Nick Creola announced last night.

Swanson was also voted the Most Valuable Player in the conference and the trio was honored at a banquet held at the Castle Restaurant, Olean, N.Y., last evening.

Balloting for the AML All-Star squad was conducted by the Olean Times-Herald.

Other first team selections were Dave Petak and Lloyd Bovard of Brockway and Ridgway's Dan Pierce.

Swanson, who led Sheffield to a second place finish in the AML and into the District 9, Class C playoffs, set numerous scoring records during his three years on the Wolverine varsity.

He posted a Sheffield standard for most points in one game with 45 against Ridgway during the past season and finished with a total of 538 points, second best in Warren County. He averaged an even 24 points for 22 Orange and Black contests.

Swanson is also the third highest scorer for one season in the history of Warren County basketball and holds the record for most points in a career, 1,021. As a sophomore, he tallied 47 points and totaled 446 during his junior year.

Swanson's brilliant play paced Sheffield to an 18-4 record in regular season and holiday tournament play, best in the county. An honorable mention on the All-State team for the 1966-67 season and listed on the high school All-American prospects list, he is being courted by Gannon College and La Salle.

Hart and Scalise are both juniors, although the latter will be ineligible next season.

Three finished fourth in county scoring with 360 points, a 16.4 average. His best night came against Eisenhower, when he poured in 29. He also was a top rebounder for the Wolverines.

Hart was one of Sheffield's most consistent players. He scored 329 points, sixth best in the county, for a 14.9 average. His 23 points against Bradford Central Christian was his top performance of the season. Hart is also a standout on the gridiron for the Orange and Black.

Petak and Bovard of Brockway led the Rovers to the AML title.

'69 State Cage Finals Slated At Farm Arena

HARRISBURG (AP) — The Pennsylvania Interscholastic Athletic Association has scheduled its 1969 state high school basketball championship games for March 21 and 22 at the Farm Show Arena here.

Theodore R. Wagner Jr., PIAA executive director, also announced Monday that the 1970 title games would be held in Pittsburgh's Civic Arena, site of this year's finals this past weekend.

Wagner said next year's Class B and C championships would be played Friday night, March 21, at the Farm Show with the Class A contest the next night. Wagner said the Spectrum in Philadelphia had been considered as a possible site for the 1969 finals, but the PIAA's board of control decided on the Farm Show instead.

Wagner also said the PIAA was considering moving the finals to Allentown in 1971. He said construction was about to begin there on an arena to hold more than 10,000 spectators.

Lewis Gets Job At Waynesburg

WAYNESBURG, Pa. (AP) — Small college power Waynesburg College named Dr. Darrell Lewis as its new head football coach Monday night.

Lewis, freshman coach at Pitt last year, succeeds Carl DePasqua who had a two-year record of 19-1 and guided the Yellow Jackets to the 1966 NAIA championship. DePasqua stepped out last month to accept an assistant coaching post with the Pittsburgh Steelers.

It will be the first head coaching job for Lewis, a Pittsburgh dentist who helped coach and scout for Pitt on a part-time basis. He quarterbacked Pitt's last two bowl teams in 1955 and 1956.

The schedule:
Thursday—Ben Jorgie Creek, 400 Brook; Perry McGee Run, 600 Brook; Rock Hollow Run, 280 Brook, 320 Rainbow; Thompson Run, 190 Brook, 210 Rainbow. Meet at 8:15 a.m. at the Tidewater Post Office, route 127.

Friday—Little Brokenstraw Creek, 2500 Brook, 3200 Rainbow. Meet at Three Point Inn, route 6 between Corry and Pittsburgh at 8:30 a.m.

George Archer Cops Pensacola Open Win

PENSACOLA, Fla. (AP) — Charging George Archer birdied the last three holes Monday and won the Pensacola Open Golf Tournament with a blazing 65.

The lanky Californian, tallest player on the pro tour at 6-foot-6, turned in a 72-hole total of 268, 20 strokes under par and one shot in front of veteran Dave Marr and England's Tony Jacklin.

Archer's total was four shots lower than the winning score in any tournament on the tour this year and earned $16,000 in prize money.

The 28-year-old Archer trailed Jacklin most of the day, but the English youngster fell back when he overshot the 17th green and missed a 10-foot putt, bogeying the hole.

Jacklin's finish was the best of his career. He and Marr both collected $7,800 for their second-place tie.

Marr closed with a 65 and Jacklin shot a 66 for totals of

Hawks Win 1st Junior Playoff

The Hawks nipped the Pistons, 51-49, in the first game of a best-of-three series for the Junior Basketball League crown at the Warren YMCA on Saturday.

Young poured in 32 points to spark the Hawks to the triumph. Lyle was the only other Hawk in double digits with 11 points.

Krumm scored 24 for the Pistons and Kern had 12.

The second game of the playoffs is slated for this Saturday.

Final County Hot Stove Signup Week

County boys who plan to play baseball in the Upper Allegheny Hot Stove League this summer are reminded that this is the final week of registration.

The next meeting for loop officers, community chairmen and managers is scheduled for April 4 at the Warren YMCA.

Market Street Wins Sudden Death Game

Market Street and Pleasant played three overtimes before the downers finally won in a "sudden death" period, 35-33, in Gray's Basketball League competition yesterday.

Willie LeMour scored the winning basket for Market. Greg Redding and Alan Torrance paced Market with ten points each.

Salamanca Sets Football Clinic

SALAMANCA, N.Y. — The Allegheny Mountain Player-Coach Football Clinic, sponsored annually by the Salamanca Area Jaycees, will be held on Saturday, April 6, at Salamanca Central High School.

Members of the clinic staff are Alex Yumovich, head coach at Alfred University; Bob Christenson, head coach at Port Allegany High School; and Robert Gelfer, assistant coach at Buffalo State University.

Registration will be held 9:30 a.m. on April 6, and the program will start at 9:30 and run until 4 p.m., with a break for lunch.

Registration fees are $5 for coaches and $2 for high school players. For further information, contact Patrick Callaghan, RD 1, Little Valley, N.Y., telephone area code 716 945-4457.

New Turbine Racer Will Be Tested by Jim Clark

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP) — A completely new turbine race car, shaped like a thin wedge of cheese, will be tested on the Indianapolis Motor Speedway the next four days by Jimmy Clark, former world road racing champion from Scotland.

The vehicle is one of four built by Lotus of England for Andy Granatelli, in cooperation with his STP Corporation's Paxton Products Division of Santa Monica, Calif.

The new STP turbine car and the one in which Panelli Jones almost won the 1967 Indianapolis 500 have the same Pratt & Whitney engine and the same Ferguson four-wheel drive.

Beyond that they vary widely. The new cars have the engine mounted in the rear, with the air intake behind the driver's head. The Jones car had the engine mounted beside the driver.

The STP 1967 model also is at the track, with a new air scoop in the nose. It also will run in tire tests this week.

The engine size for the turbine cars is under litigation in U.S. District Court here. A ruling is not expected before next week.

Granatelli is seeking an injunction to force the U.S. Auto Club to permit turbines to run with the same size engines as last year.

Rotary Club Observes Chamber of Commerce Week

Barry R. Epstein, executive secretary, Warren County Chamber of Commerce, was the speaker at Monday's meeting of the Warren Rotary Club at the Blue Manor at noon. The occasion was the club's observance of National Chamber of Commerce Week.

Assisted by a slide talk, Epstein outlined the goals and functions of the Chamber of Commerce and the structure of an effective organization.

The slogan for this year's Chamber of Commerce promotion is "It Takes Two -- the Chamber and You!" "It takes two" buttons were given each Rotarian. Present developments of the local chamber aim at active involvement of every member in some phase of its activities.

Health Survey Shows Fewer Teen-age Smokers

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — A U.S. Public Health Service survey of teen-agers across the country shows 10 per cent fewer smokers than 10 years ago, and says 80 per cent of those who do smoke plan to quit.

Results of the survey, first of its scope since 1958, were disclosed Monday by Dr. Daniel Horn, director of the service's National Clearing House for Smoking and Health, at a symposium for science writers sponsored by the American Cancer Society.

Horn also reported a decrease of more than two per cent in cigarette manufacture in the past year and said: "We may very well be on our way to success in bringing this important problem under some kind of control."

He credited recent news stories and television advertisements on the health hazards of cigarette smoking with a significant role in the decline.

The random telephone survey covers 4,414 interviews from December to February with boys and girls ranging from 12 to 18 years old.

Among the findings: — One boy in 7 and one girl in 12 were regular smokers. This was a drop of 10 per cent in each group from a survey made in 1958.

— More than 45 per cent said they "definitely" do not expect to be cigarette smokers in five years, and more than 34 per cent said they "probably" will not be smokers then.

— Ninety-one per cent answered "Yes" to the question: Would you say smoking is harmful to health?

— Smoking is more common among children whose parents smoke, who have fallen behind in school, or who do not expect to go on to college.

— The number of parents who smoke has dropped from 55 per cent 10 years ago to 50 per cent today.

Horn said reports by the Internal Revenue Service show manufacture of cigarettes dropped from 133 billion in November-December-January of 1966-67 to 130 billion in the same months of 1967-68.

Results of a survey of smoking among college students will be available in a few months, Dr. Horn said.

The Warren County Humane Society presently has several dogs available to persons who will provide the canines with a good home.

The dogs listed for adoption are a large boarder collie, about one year old; a female dachshund type, about eight months old; several small short-haired terrier types; a one-year old female terrier; a one-year-old collie-type and a female German shepherd, about six months old.

For information concerning any of the above dogs, contact Warren County Humane Society by telephoning 726-1961.

NFO Is Holding Back Supplies of Meat

PITTSBURGH (AP) — About 1,200 members of the National Farmers Organization through-out Western Pennsylvania are holding back some 2 million pounds of beef and pork from market, but meat supplies appear plentiful to the consumer.

"We can stand it as long as the packer can," said Robert Zuschlag, zone coordinator for the NFO. "He has the overhead."

Members of the farmer's organization across the country have been withholding the sale of meat to packing houses since Feb. 12. The organization wants to establish a fixed price for steer and hog meat with packers.

The nationwide organization is now seeking contracts with the nation's largest packers to set a farm price of 32 cents a pound on steers and 23 cents a pound on hogs.

"This will be the first time the American farmer will be able to set his own price," said James Wenzel, of Saegertown, Crawford County.

Wenzel and other farmers in the organization claim that while everything they purchase is at a fixed price, their sales prices to packers fluctuate.

The farmers say they'll end their withholding action when the country's packing houses agree to their demands.

Wenzel said farmers in Western Pennsylvania may be experiencing some financial difficulties. "When labor organized," he said, "they had to take a loss." He pointed out, however, that most of Western Pennsylvania's farmers are dairymen and may not be feeling the pinch as much as farmers in some Western states.

Phillip Newcomb, sales manager of A & P food stores in the Pittsburgh region, said the company's more than 150 stores in his area have not had to cut back on any meats.

"We have all the meat we want and we've had no shortage in getting meat," Newcomb said. He also said that meat prices were fluctuating "as they normally do."

Not all farmers in the country are NFO members.

'67 Was Successful Year In County Conservation

The directors of Warren County Soil and Water Conservation District report that 1967 was a successful year in advancing soil, water, woodland and wildlife conservation programs in Warren County.

The board expressed appreciation for the interest and financial support contributed toward the program by Warren County Commissioners.

Progress was shown by the signing of agreements by 47 landowners in Warren County in 1967, requesting, through the Warren County Soil and Water Conservation District, as-istance in developing their soil, water, woodland, wildlife and recreation resources.

Representing Warren County Soil and Water Conservation District at a Pennsylvania State Soil and Water Conservation Commission workshop were: Gerald Bensink, chairman; James G. Marshall, director; and John R. Reddick, executive assistant for the Warren County district.

The workshop was attended by forty directors and staff members, who met March 14 at Rhea's Manor in Clarion.

Charles Hess, executive director for the Commission initiated the discussions, using slides illustrating the need for conservation in Pennsylvania. Harry Brawdy and Harry Meyer, field representatives, and Ralph Hunter, program specialists, led group discussions on problems and opportunities related to the district.

According to John Reddick, executive assistant for the district, assistance for cooperators is furnished primarily through the following conservation-minded agencies: U. S. Soil Conservation Service, Lyle G. Cathcart, work unit conservationist; Agricultural Extension Office, Bernard Wingert, County Agent; Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, U.S. Dept. of Agriculture, Charles Camp, County Committee chairman; and Gerald Bensink office manager, Pennsylvania Department of Forests and Waters, Robert Ache, district forester; Pennsylvania Dept. of Highways, Robert D. Shattuck, roadside development engineer; Pennsylvania Fish Commission, Ken Corey, fish warden; Pennsylvania Game Commission, William Overturf, land manager; Farmers Home Administration, Robert Meneely, county supervisor; Vocational Agriculture Dr. Bryan Decker, area supervisor.

Officers for the Warren County Soil and Water Conservation District are: Gerald G. Bensink chairman; Allan P. Lindell vice-chairman; Dr. David K. Rice, County Commissioner member; Elmer O. Blystone and James G. Marshall.

Explosion Rocks Chemical Co.

AMBRIDGE, Pa. (AP) — An explosion erupted in the chemical cooking room of the Freeman Chemical Co. Monday, popping out walls and the ceiling in the building and shattering windows blocks away.

The fire that followed sent black clouds of smoke billowing into the air, but firemen brought the blaze under control quickly.

"It started out kind of slow, then it let go good," said Elvin Baker, who was 150 feet away in the storeroom of H.H. Robertson Co.

"The lower end of Ambridge just rocked," he said.

The five employees at Freeman, a Robertson subsidiary, had left the building and weren't hurt. The cause wasn't known.

Objectors Sentenced To Prison

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — Three young Jehovah's witnesses were sentenced Monday to serve federal prison terms of a year and a day each for failing to report for civilian work in lieu of military service.

Judge Harold P. Burke of U.S. District Court imposed the sentences on Leonard K. Borgeson, 22, of Croton Falls; John S. Hiltz, 22, of Binghamton; and Charles E. Harmon, 23, of Rochester.

Burke previously had found the men guilty as charged in separate trials.

Borgeson and Hiltz were accused by the government of failing to report as ordered to Rochester State Hospital for two years of work. Harmon was accused of failing to report to Buffalo State Hospital.

The three, classified as conscientious objectors by their draft boards, contended that accepting the orders would interfere with their religious beliefs and practices.
